CONGRESS HAS EYE FIXED ON MONEY TANGLE

ENLARGEMENT OF BOARD POWERS POSSIBLE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1929, by the Escanaba Press)

Washington, April 1.—Members of congress and President Hoover are showing concern over the cattle between the federal reserve board and the speculators. Proposals for legislation to enlarge the powers of the federal reserve board are being discussed on Capitol Hill. Mr. Hoover is staying out of the controversy himself but he is keeping informed of what is going on.

The concern of all is whether the business situation will be affected by the high money rates that prevail. Thus far industrial and business activity have continued on a satisfactory basis and it is the picture of possible rise in the expense to commercial borrowers that is being constantly projected as the chief reason for the federal reserve board's warnings to the speculating element.

Congress Sensitive.

Congress is generally sensitive to any change in business conditions. The cost of borrowing money for construction of buildings has already gone up and it is said that in cities like New York for instance, second mortgage money is obtainable only at such discounts or bonuses as to make the total cost something above 18 per cent and occasionally as high as 25 per cent. Just what this may do toward slowing down the construction industry can be conjectured but in a measure the same difficulty may apply to other businesses requiring a constant use of borrowed funds.

Corporations which have been lending their funds in the New York markets are finding uses for such funds at home to take the place of funds they have been borrowing heretofore at low rates from the banks. Some of these institutions have been gradually raising the interest rates even on large accounts and old customers. This is not yet widespread but it is a symptom of the general situation. The federal reserve board takes the position that all this is largely due to the fact that the speculators are absorbing credit that should go to commercial uses, or to put it another way, they are making credit so scarce as to force its cost higher and higher.

Demand May Be Acute.

When congress reconvenes, the clamor from different parts of the country for an easing of the situation will become acute. There is always a sort of anti-Wall Street feeling here when any difficulties about money control arise and the conservative heads in Washington fear that if the tendency is permitted to grow that the situation must be handled by congress, some other things may be injected into the legislation which would be dangerous for the future.

The federal reserve act has in 15 years been amended and changed to some extent but the friends of the law have succeeded in resisting major attempts to make the system too rigid. At present the board has wide discretionary powers.

Shall some of these powers be made mandatory? Shall congress in effect direct by law how emergencies shall be handled and give the board really no alternative but to enforce the laws covering specific transactions in the complicated world of credit?

Leave It to Board?

The alternative, of course, is that the board be allowed to work out the situation itself without outside interference or pressure for in this case particularly the board is trying to carry out what appears to be the sentiment of those most active in congress for specific legislative change.

To the extent that the New York speculators render the federal reserve board helpless, either by defiance or outright resistance, will congressional sentiment for action mandatory in character be crystallized.

SHAKEUP DUE POSTAL DEP'T

Plan General Reorganization in Attempt to Make It Pay

By ROBERT S. PICKENS
(Ass'd Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Apr. 1—(AP)—The postoffice department is on the verge of a general re-organization which will include a large part of the administrative branches and extend on down through the entire postal service.

Postmaster General Brown has determined not only to bring the post office nearer a paying basis but also to raise the standard of character and ability in the tremendous personnel of the postal service.

If the present plans of Mr. Brown are carried out, and it is understood that he has submitted them to President Hoover and received from him the promise of hearty support, the only assistant postmaster general to remain will be W. Irving Glover, now second assistant in charge of air mail.

First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett is to be replaced and the duties of that office so remodelled that instead of spending time settling personnel disputes and studying postoffice sites the first assistant will become the right-hand of the postmaster general in the formulating of policies and their execution. No one has been selected to succeed Mr. Bartlett.

Use New System

The Third Assistant, Robert S. Regar, is to be replaced by a certified public accountant if one can be found who has what Mr. Brown terms "a knowledge of the broader phases of business." Mr. Regar under the present plans, will be retained in the department in another capacity as the new postmaster general has a high regard for his ability. Under the third assistant at present almost the entire financial policy of the department if carried out.

When Mr. Brown completes his official family he intends to give attention to elimnation of bureaucratic methods in the department, both in dealing with postal employees and in relations with the public.

Lindbergh On Way To Visit Fiancee

El Paso, Texas, Apr. 1—(AP)—Believed bound for Mexico City to visit his fiance, Anne Morrow, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh stopped here at 5:30 p. m. today to refuel his Curtiss biplane before continuing his trip to an unannounced destination on the Texas-Mexico border tonight. Lindbergh left Santa Barbara, Calif., this morning.

FRANCE WILL PAY HOMAGE TO HERRICK

DEATH IS MOURNED AS ONE OF OWN

Paris, April 1—(AP)—France has taken the death of American Ambassador Herrick as her own loss and will pay him the same honors she pays to those of her own distinguished sons.

The ambassador's last homegoing will be aboard a ship which is the pride of the French navy, the new swift cruiser Tourville. The premier of France will pronounce the only oration over the dead and the French army will render the same honors accorded generals and marshals of France as the procession goes from the American embassy to the church. Those honors spring from the sentiment of French people of all classes who had unbounded faith in Ambassador Herrick and loved him not only for his friendship to France but also for himself. His genial manners had made him known throughout the country as few other foreign diplomats have ever been known.

The funeral services will begin Thursday morning at an hour to be subsequently fixed, it was decided today after Mrs. Parmley Herrick had talked with her husband in New York by wireless telephone. Ceremonies are to begin at the embassy, where Premier Poincare will pay tribute to Mr. Herrick's memory in the name of the French government.

Immediately afterward, the cortege will form at the embassy and proceed to the American procathedral in the Avenue George V with detachments of French troops rendering honors.

The body of the Ambassador probably will be transported at once to Brest or Cherbourg, where it is to be placed aboard the Tourville. The cruiser will sail at once for New York. A special guard of honor will be designated by the government to accompany the body to its last resting place.

DIED AT 75

Paris, April 1—(AP)—United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, died at 4:10 p. m. Sunday from a heart collapse caused by an attack of bronchitis. He was 75 years of age.

The famous American diplomat, who won the hearts of the French people by his refusel to leave Paris when other diplomats fled before the threatened German invasion in 1914, on Tuesday had walked bareheaded in the Foch funeral cortege from Notre Dame cathedral to Les Invalides, three hours in the damp soggy air, relieved by occasional bursts of sunshine. In evening dress he sat through the long service in the unheated and draughty nave of the cathedral.

The bronchial attack and its heart complications followed.

SKETCH OF LIFE

Beginning his career a poor boy selling dinner bells to farmers, Myron T. Herrick, by virtue of his complication, and ability, rose to the position of financier, engaged in large banking and railroad enterprises, and became Governor of Ohio. A personal friend of President McKinley, he was offered three cabinet positions by Presidents of the United States and was appointed to the French Ambassadorship by President Taft in 1912. The title of Colonel was given to him when he was appointed on the staff of Governor McKinley of Ohio.

During his diplomatic service as American Ambassador in Paris in the World War, Colonel Herrick won the gratitude of stranded British and Americans and so arranged their affairs that they were able to return to their homes and not become victims of speculators. English men and women paid him warm tribute when, on one occasion, he enabled 4,000 of them to depart safely for England. For meritorious services during the crisis in Paris when the Germans were near their city, Colonel Herrick had bestowed upon him the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor by France.

Born in Ohio

Born in Huntington, Ohio, October 9, 1854, Mr. Herrick tried to go to school and make a living at the same time. He is reported to have added to his sale of dinner bells to farmers, organs and lightning rods.

He entered Oberlin College and

Federals Repulsed at Jimenez

(BULLETIN)

Mexico City, April 1—(AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, federal generalissimo, informed the government late tonight that federal artillery had resumed bombardment of Jimenez after a lull in the fighting earlier in the day.

At 5 p. m., he said, shelling of the city was begun again and a windmill which had served as a rebel machine gun nest was destroyed. General Calles said that half of Jimenez was in the power of the federals as a result of the fighting which had continued since 1 a. m.

By The Associated Press

Fighting flamed up on all three fronts of the Mexican revolution Monday as federals and rebels really came to grips in the first decisive struggle of the Mexican revoluton.

The insurgent main army finally turned on the column of General Almazan and a battle of major proportions ensued for possession of the town of Jimenez. Government and rebel headquarters both declared the fighting was on, but the rebels at Juarez located it at Escalon to the south of Jimenez.

Early reports indicated that the combat had been violent and bloody since sunrise.

Street Fighting

A federal air scout reported that fighting was going on in the streets of Jimenez by noon, the federal left having pushed the insurgents back into the town on that flank.

The main armies were fighting about a mile south of Jimenez on a two mile front. General Calles from his headquarters at Bermajillo, informed Mexico City that the federals were having the better of the battle despite strong resistance.

He said the rebels were well entrenched. The main bodies of both armies were engaged.

Simultaneously, General Cardenas, commanding the federal Pacific Coast forces, reported to Mexico City that his troops were advancing rapidly against a strong rebel body at La Cruz.

STATE TO AID IN RAID CASE

Ask Attorney General to Investigate DeKing Slaying

By ALLEN DALRYMPLE
(Ass'd Press Staff Writer)

Aurora, Ill., Apr. 1—(AP)—The Kane county circuit court today asked the attorney general of Illinois to take charge of the investigation of the death of Mrs. Lillian De King, slain last week by dry raiders. The order was issued on the eve of the coroner's inquest after State's Attorney George D. Carbary had petitioned the court to take the matter from his hands.

Under fire from residents of the county as well as the country at large, the state's attorney last week asked Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general, to take charge because of the intense feeling and apparent belief that he would not handle the case impartially. Carlstrom appointed Charles W. Hadley, assistant attorney general, to attend the coroner's inquest at Geneva tomorrow, as an observer only, explaining that further pacipation would not be legal.

Petition Necessary

State's Attorney Garbary's petition today was to make legal the attorney general's taking charge of the case.

If Attorney General Carlstrom declines to take charge of the investigation of the raid on the De King home, in which Joseph De King, a laborer, was struck down from behind and his skull fractured, his wife killed, his son terrorized, and a deputy sheriff shot, the court next month will appoint a special prosecutor and set a date for reconvening the grand jury, as specified in the court order, signed by Judge John K. Newhall.

The attorney after the shooting declared he believed Roy Smith, the deputy sheriff leading the raid, had acted in self defense when he fired the fatal shot at Mrs. De King, after striking down her husband with the butt of his shotgun. He was quoted as saying he believed Deputy Smith could prove he had acted in the line of duty.

MICHAELSON SURRENDERS; POSTS BOND

BRANDS INDICTMENT CHARGES AS FALSE

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—Assailing as false the charges against him, Congressman M. A. Michaelson of Chicago, sought for several days on an indictment voted at Jacksonville, Fla., charging him with importing liquor, today walked into the federal building, formally surrendered, made bond and walked out again, all within five minutes.

The congressman, classed as a dry in legislative circles, was indicted several months ago on charges that liquor was contained in a trunk he brought to Key West from Cuba, but the indictment did not become public until last week at which time federal authorities announced that it had been held in abeyance until congress adjourned because he was immune from arrest while attending the session of congress.

Michaelson went to the office of an assistant district attorney and there gave himself up to the United States marshal. Edwin K. Walker, United States commissioner, was called in, Michaelson accompanied the commissioner to the latter's office, and posted $2,000 bonds to assure his appearance at Jacksonville after waiving examination.

He then walked briskly from the federal building accompanied by two federal agents to ward off reporters and photographers. He made a brief statement to reporters that he was not guilty of the charges, and would go to Jacksonville to prove his innocence. He said he expected to be arraigned in May and declared he would issue a formal statement that would "explain everything."

Asked where he had been last week when deputy marshals were searching for him to notify him of the warrant, the congressman indicated he had been in Washington but did not state for what purpose.

District Attorney Opposes Delay; Asks Immediate Action

Minneapolis, Apr. 1—(AP)—Because, he avers, rumors have reached him to the effect that Nicholas Constans, former head of the Consumers Wholesale Supply company would "never be brought to trial," James E. Wharton, assistant United States district attorney today asked that the trial be started at this term of court in Minneapolis.

In petition filed in court he asked that the defense be ordered to show why a previous order setting the case over until the September term of court should not be revoked. Arguments on the petition are to be heard Tuesday.

On March 5 attorneys for Constans asked that his case be continued to the September term. Mr. Wharton opposed the delay at that time. After hearing arguments Judge W. A. Cant granted the continuance.

E. C. Voght Slated For State Commission Job

Lansing, Apr. 1—(Special)—Edward C. Voght, of Escanaba, will be appointed by Governor Green as a member of the state conservation commission when the legislature passes the bill which requires that two of the five members of the commission shall be Upper Peninsula residents, it has been learned in legislative circles. Early approval of the bill by the legislature is expected.

The commission, at present, includes only one Upper Peninsula man—Norman H. Hill, Sault Ste. Marie newspaper publisher. It long has been conceeded, in all sections of the state that, since a large part of the commission's affairs have to do with the Upper Peninsula, that section should have more than one member on the state body.

Governor Green's selection of Mr. Voght for the expected vacancy, created by the law now pending, was announced to members of the legislature from the Upper Peninsula.

VETERAN IN THE GAME

Edward C. Voght, selected by Governor Green as the second Upper Peninsula member of the conservation commission, has been a resident of Escanaba for the last 42 years. During all of that time he has been advocating, preaching and practicing conservation of Michigan's wild life. Conservation with Mr. Voght is not a mass of untested theories. His knowledge of conditions and results getting methods have been acquired through his years of active leadership in the conservation movement.

He has been affiliated with virtually every conservation organization that has been formed in Menominee, Mich., Apr. 1—(AP)—A huge ice field eight feet in depth, blocked traffic Monday 18 miles north of here on highway 35, the Green bay shore road. The ice was blasted away to open the road.

The ice, which had been broken up on Green bay last week and was being carried out of the bay by southerly winds was brought back to this shore by the blizzard out of the northeast which developed into the worst storm in years. The ice was forced across the road and into a field beyond.

Mrs. George W. Kirt of Traverse City, Mich., nearly lost her life by drowning when a car driven by her husband was swept from the highway by the terrific gale and overturned in a ditch filled with water near Hanson, seven miles north of here.

Forecast Treasury Surplus Will Be Near $100,000,000

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Treasury officials today forecast a surplus of more than $100,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year, June 30, on the basis of March income tax collections.

The March collections were reported at the treasury to have amounted to approximately $595,000,000. This amount, it was said, resulted to a large extent from an increase in current individual returns. This increase, it was explained, was due chiefly to the enormous activity of the stock exchange and with large profits and small deductions because of an almost continuous increase in prices.

It was estimated by the treasury that the return for the fiscal year would be the largest since 1921.

New York, Apr. 1—(AP)—The New York Times tomorrow will say that Colonel Robert W. Although he declined to discuss his plans, it was reported that arrangements are almost complete for him to head a large independent oil company which will be formed through a merger of two or more units.

GREEN ADVISES SALE OF PLANT

Disposal of Chelsea Cement Works Asked as Matter of Policy

Lansing, Mich., Apr. 1—(AP)—In special message to the legislature tonight Governor Fred W. Green advocated sale of the state owned Chelsea Cement plant. The executive based his recommendation upon the fact the plant has fallen far short of being a paying investment and the theory that it is against public policy for the state to compete with private enterprise.

The governor threw certain conditions around the proposed sale. One was that a market should be found which would at least return to the state its investment of $703,000. The other that the legislature must decide whether sale of the plant would increase cement prices. If the industry is sold the governor would devote the proceeds to new prison industries to provide employment for inmates. He would provide principally for production in the prisons of goods which could be used by the state.

Chelsea Cement plant was purchased by the state administrative board, under Former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck for $500,000 plus an inventory of $158,000 since then thousands of dollars have been spent for improvements, the plant is $703,709 in the "red" to the state industrial fund.

The auditor general recently completed a report for the year 1928 it showed a theoretical profit of $59,000 for the year. The governor pointed out in his message "the profit" is entirely fallacious. No funds were set aside for depreciation, interest, insurance nor any of the expenses incurred by private industry. In addition, prison labor was employed at much less cost than free labor.

The governor contended that the former administrative board exceeded its legal authority when it bought the plant. Now that it is state property he believes it cannot be sold without legislative sanction.

"The plant" was obsolete and proven commercial failure when the state bought it, the message states. "It would be prohibitive to operate the Chelsea plant were it not for the advantage the state has over private enterprise." "The matter resolves itself into this: can the state sell the plant at this time for an amount equal to the present investment? If you receive this could you use it to as good advantage in supplying other employment for 200 prison inmates? Would we be able to get our cement as cheaply in the future without a state plant? If

SIX PERSONS ARE KILLED IN BLIZZARD

SCORES ARE INJURED THROUGHOUT THE MIDDLE WEST

By The Associated Press

The Easter storm which swept the Middle West, taking one life and causing heavy property damage, roared into the east yesterday raising the death toll to six persons and destroying property over a wide territory.

Sweeping through southern Ohio, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania, into New Jersey and on into Canada, winds of almost tornado force blew down trees, unroofed houses and other buildings and crippled telephone and telegraph communication. Wind velocities above sixty miles an hour were reportaed in Ohio. Winds of diminishing velocity were felt all over the east.

A man was killed at Newark, Ohio, by a tree which was blown down on top of his automobile; at Buffalo, N. Y., a trackman was killed in a like accident; a 16 year old girl was blown into the path of an automobile and fatally injured at Belmore, Ohio; a 10 year old school girl was fatally injured at Newel, W. Va., by a beam blown from a barn.

A two ton roof was lifted from a building at Rome, N. Y., by the wind, and deposited 300 yards away.

In Canada the high winds were accompanied by sleet and snow, which broke down telephone and telegraph lines and made the roads impassable in places. Eighteen inches of snow was reported in northern section of Ontario.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 1—(AP)—With telegraph wires torn, poles broken and conduits flooded, Wisconsin virtually was cut off from the outside world today, following the Easter Sunday storm that blanketed the greater part of the state with snow, ice and sleet.

Newspaper editors in some cities were forced to depend on a radio report as broadcast for them by the Associated Press in conjunction with the Milwaukee Journal station, WTMJ; others got their news after wires were routed from Chicago to Des Moines to Omaha to Minneapolis, and from there to various Wisconsin points.

Many brokerage houses were less fortunate, being without wire connections with the important trading centers of the east for the greater part of the day. Where the various telegraph companies were able to maintain communication, it was only on single wires.

Telegraph and telephone linemen are following their lines to make temporary repairs and check the extent of the damage.

$1,000,000 Damage.

Officials estimated that from 1500 to 3000 poles were down, with damage at more than $1,000,000. The worst loss was reported in the southwestern corner of the state. It is expected that temporary service to all important cities will be restored within the next three days.

Most of Milwaukee's streets and homes were in darkness last night. Similar conditions were reported from other southern Wisconsin points.

Railroad, interurban and highway traffic north of Milwaukee was badly handicapped.

Two hundred passengers bound from that city to Milwaukee on interurban trains were forced to spend a cold and hungry night in the cars when they became stalled. Most of them managed to reach this city during the day, either hitching rides or walking.

Dancers Marooned.

Green Bay reported 200 persons were marooned in a Brown county dance hall while high waters backed up and marooned 80 dancers in another hall on the bay shore.

If beauty is any compensation for property loss and inconvenience, then Wisconsin was abundantly blessed today when the sun transformed ice-covered fields and woods into sparkling masses of cut glass and crystal.

And far to the north there was neither snow nor ice nor cold. Reports from Ashland and Ironwood, Mich., indicated that warm breezes and a bright sun had banished the last traces of the winter's snows.

FLOOD MENACE.

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—Spring fell into a fit of atavism during the Easter week-end, paralyzing many sections of the midd'ewest with the stormy grip of winter.

The Easter storm not only thwarted fashion parades and demoralized communication lines but created a new flood menace in the upper Mississippi valley where several inches of rain, snow and sleet rushed down into streams already bulging at flood stage.

While the unseasonable storm swept furiously over a wide area

Gladstone Has Lively Election; Light Vote Here

HAWKINS AND MACKIE WIN

Regular Township Ticket Is Victorious at Maple Ridge

Interest in the election yesterday centered in Gladstone and the township of Maple Ridge where spirited contests were waged by the candidates for public office. In Escanaba, only 111 citizens went to the polls to make their choice of the candidates for various state offices, a number representing only about one-sixtieth of the registration. The Republican ticket was victorious over the Democratic slate by about 11 to 1.

The highest vote ever cast in a city election at Gladstone since the installation of the commission form of government was recorded in that city yesterday, the electors putting into office of commissioner Claude Hawkins and James Mackie in a close four-cornered race. I. N. Bushong, incumbent, who has been on the commission from the beginning, lost by a scant nine votes. The results of the polling were as follows: Hawkins, 397; Mackie, 375; Bushong, 366; Micks, 309.

The regular township ticket, headed by August Larson, candidate for re-election as supervisor, was victorious over the Taxpayers' Association ticket, headed by Harry Hall, by a wide margin. Every candidate on the regular slate won. The severe snowstorm did not prevent the voters from going to the polls, there being 340 votes cast.

A small vote was recorded in the city of Manistique, there being no local candidates there. Several spirited contests developed in the townships however.

The Republican ticket of candidates for state offices was victorious in every township in Delta county, according to the returns available last night. Judge Frank A. Bell was unopposed in his candidacy for re-election to the judgeship of the twenty-fifth judicial circuit.

The Republican candidates were as follows: Justice of the supreme court, Walter H. North and Louis H. Fead;; regent of the university, R. Perry Shorts and Walter H. Sawyer; superintendent of public instruction, Webster H. Pearce; member of the state board of education, Ellen M. Freeland; member of the state board of agriculture, Clark L. Brody and William H. Berkey; and state highway commissioner, Grover C. Dillman.

ESCANABA VOTE

The vote in the eight precincts in Escanaba for the four tickets on the ballot was as follows: First precinct, Republican 8; Democratic 6; second, Republican 11; Democratic 2; Prohibition 1; third, Republican 11; Democratic 2; Socialist 1; fourth, Republican 7; fifth, Republican 12, Democratic 2; sixth Republican 10; seventh, Republican 16; Prohibition 1; eighth, Republican 15; Democratic 1, Prohibition 1, Socialist 1.

In his career as a railroad financier he was chairman of the Board of Directors of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, a director of the Missouri Pacific, participated in the purchase of the Western Maryland Railroad and assisted in such financial organization that the Gould railroads were enabled to enter Pittsburgh.

Governor of Ohio

Mr. Herrick was Governor of Ohio from 1903 to 1906. He was one of the staunchest friends of President McKinley, came to his assistance when he met with financial reverses and was also treasurer of the McKinley Memorial association. For a long time he was a member of the executive committee of the Republic party.

During his residence in Paris as American Ambassador, it was reported, his "brilliant entertainment combined with his democratic spirit made him a most popular host." Colonel Herrick is said to have entertained official Paris so generously that his expense totaled over $400,000.

On his return from Paris an enthusiastic group of friends in Cleveland attempted to start a movement to nominate him for the Presidency, but Mr. Herrick declined these honors, declaring that he would not capitalize whatever credit was due him for European service.

Lover of Art

While in France Colonel Herrick made a study of agricultural finance and worked out with the French government a plan for the exchange between the two countries of information on farm finance. "We cannot hope for an increase in food production unless deserving farmers can get low rates and long periods on money," he declared.

Colonel Herrick was a leader of society, a lover of good music, good books and good paintings. He played golf and was an ardent baseball enthusiast, once giving a reception to the New York and Chicago baseball teams in Paris. At the time of his departure for France he was described as being a big, hardy man with the keen eyes and firm mouth of a man who knows business.

Colonel Herrick married Carolyn M. Parmely, daughter of M. R. Parmely of Dayton, Ohio, June 30, 1880. Mrs. Herrick died in 1918. A son, Parmely Webb Herrick, resides in Cleveland.

It was said of Ambassador Herrick that he looked the part. He had a tall figure, slightly stooped. A voice of fine timbre, combined with an attractive geniality, increased the charm of his personality.

One of the most trying situations in post-war diplomatic service was the difficult task of presenting the views of his government in negotiations on the Franco-American problem of war debts.

Host to Lindbergh

Another trying situation developed when he became the Paris host of Charles A. Lindbergh, when the "lone eagle" flew from New York to Paris, on the first non-stop air voyage between the two cities.

Herrick hailed Lindbergh as the "new ambassador of America." Where one ambassador went, the other went too. During "Lindbergh week" in Paris, the close cooperation of the pair of Americans did much to cement cordiality between the two countries.

The visit of the airman aroused the enthusiasm of the French people to a degree little short of hysteria but through all the excitement it was said Lindbergh always said the right thing at the right time. Herrick was given credit for a part in Lindbergh's steadfast refusal to permit himself to be stampeded.

The ambassador's part in Paris was not without its dangers. Herrick once was guarded by the police, following threats from anarchists, angered at imposition of death sentences on Sacco and Vanzetti by a Massachusetts court.

When past seventy Herrick continued to play golf his game being good enough to win a championship cup in the Paris diplomaic tournament.

WHO WILL FILL VACANCY?

Washington, April 1—(AP)—The death of Myron T. Herrick, veteran American ambassador at Paris, has placed before President Hoover the task of making his first major appointment in the United States diplomatic corps.

Appointees of the Coolidge regime have remained in office and the vacancy caused unexpectedly at Paris has added to the problems of realignments. Mr. Herrick had been slated to remain in that post at least temporarily.

While it probably will be some time before a successor to Mr. Herrick is selected—certainly until after the funeral—numerous names have been mentioned in unofficial circles here for that office, regarded as one of the most important in the American foreign service.

Among those who are being discussed is Hugh S. Gibson of California, now ambassador to Belgium, and a close personal friend of President Hoover. Mr. Gibson, who has been in the American foreign service more than 20 years, is one of the foremost of the diplomatic career men and has had a wide experience in European affairs in general.

Kellogg Mentioned

Another is Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador at Rome, who accompanied President Hoover on his South American good will tour as a special representative of the state department.

The suggestion has been made that former Secretary Kellogg might consent to become ambassador at Paris, to which city he is now enroute for a vacation, should the president request him to act until a decision had been made upon a permanent appointee. Former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, mentioned for the post at London, now has been suggested for the French alignment. Dwift F. Davis, secretary of war under Coolidge, of St. Louis, has been mentioned as have former Governor Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts, and John W. Garrett of Baltimore.

FEDERALS REPULSED AT JIMENEX

north of Mazatlan. His advance guards had already engaged enemy outposts, forcing them to fall back.

Rebels Bomb Naco

General Cardenas thought that the whole insurgent army on the west coast was concentrated at La Cruz and ready for battle under Generals Iturbe and Cruz.

In the north, rebels resumed their aerial bombardment of Naco, Sonora, where a federal force is entrenched and isolated in hostile territory.

Juarez, Chihuahua, April 1—(AP)—Official rebel bulletins today declared that Major Fierro, ace of the Mexican federal air forces, and his assistant had been killed in a crash at Torreon after being wounded by a rifle bullet in an air raid on Jiminez. This conflicted with Mexico City advices which reported that Major Fierro was forced down but had reached the federal line safely on foot.

Coincident with the air attack, troop movements in rebel encampments began. Cavalry deployed south of the federal trenches and bodies of infantry appeared to the southeast.

American troops across the boundary were ready at Naco, Ariz., to place the town under military guard when the attack was launched.

BY CLARENCE DUBOSE

American Press Correspondent

Mexico City, April 1—(AP)—The federal armies, after more than 12 hours of assault, suspended their attack on Jimenez, Chihauhua, this afternoon, but a "definite attack" will be resumed at daybreak. This was announced at Chapultepec Castle tonight.

The federal attack on the entrenched rebels had begun at 1 o'clock this morning and 12 hours later they had been able to make only a slight advance, bending back the right flank of the defense lines and carrying the fighting in that sector into the streets of the city itself.

The insurgents were apparently fully prepared for the attack and their entrenchments stretched for two miles in a semi-circle around the approaches of the city. Another slight advantage reported by the federals was the cutting of railroad lines which would bar a rebel retreat toward the north and force them to fight to a finish.

Smaller Battles

While this battle, felt by the government to be the real test of the revolutionary strength, rage don, smaller rival armies fought it out for seven hours at Limon, Sinalos, in the west coast campaign. General Rodrigo Telemante reported more than 100 enemy dead and 50 captured as against total federal losses of not more than 20.

AIR BOMB NACO

Naco, Sonora, Mexico, April 1—(AP)—A federal soldier was wounded here this afternoon in the second aerial bombardment of the fortification by rebel planes today. Four bombs were dropped, all falling inside the entrenchments but only two exploded.

No deaths resulted from another air raid which came without warning a few minutes before ten o'clock this morning.

The bombing followed closely the funeral in a little cemetery outside the wire entanglements of the two federal captains who were killed by an air bomb yesterday afternoon.

Three of this morning's bombs fell within the fortifications of the town but failed to strike in the trenches. One missile knocked down a steel fragment. Another bomb fell in the back yard of a house in which a Mexican woman was bathing a child. Fragments of the shell riddled a wash tub hanging on the wall over their heads but injured neither. Soldiers fled to shelter.

Planes Protected

In the raid the rebels sent a second plane aloft to protect the bomber against possible attack by federal aviators. Two federal planes armed with sub-machine hovered along the international line during attack while Mexico officials strove to expedite permission from Washington for the planes to enter Mexico.

Activity inside the trenches was feverish. New machine gun emplacements were thrown up in the southeast sector as it began to appear that that section of the trenches might be called upon to withstand the brunt of the attack, and all small buildings near the line of trenches were being knocked down.

Department Called By Blaze Caused by Defective Wiring

The fire department was called out last night at about eight o'clock to 509 Ludington street where a fire had started in the basement of a building owned by Tom Harris who lives on the second floor of the building. The lower flat is occupied by Sawyer & Stroll timber offices and great volumes of smoke filled these rooms. The firemen were obliged to break the front door open to investigate. They found defective wiring in the basement was the cause of the fire. The wires ran along a pipe in the basement starting fire in the timbers and burning a hole through the floor. Very little damage was done.

While the No. 1 department was fighting the fire, the No. 2 department was called to 1410 Sixteenth street, North Escanaba, where a small frame dwelling was on fire. The occupant of the house had left a fire in the kitchen stove when departing from the place, and it is believed that the blaze was caused by overheating. The roof was ablaze when the firemen arrived. Considerable damage was done.

Two Automobile Accidents Sunday

Two automobile accidents occurred on the concrete highway, US 2-41, west of the city in Sunday afternoon's storm, causing considerable damage to three cars and injuries to three persons.

An automobile, driven by H. D. Priest of Iron River, collided with another, driven by George Olson, 312 North Twelfth stret, near the Twenty-third and Ludington street intersection. Priest suffered a painful cut on the fact, and his companion, whoes name was not learned, was badly bruised. The driver of the other car received a cut on the forehead.

While driving about 35 miles an hour, the right front wheel of the Essex coach, operated by Sid Derusha came off and the car overturned twice. Derusha and three other occupants miraculously escaped uninjured. The automobile was virtually demolished.

GREEN ADVISES SALE OF PLANT

these questions can be answered affirmatively the plant should be offered for sale for not less than the states investment. It is not good public policy for the state to be engaged in private industry unless there is an unusual reason for it.

Paroler Talks Himself Into Some Trouble

William Christensen of Gladstone, who was paroled about a year ago upon his conviction of violation of the prohibition law, made his regular report concerning his behavior to Parole Officer John Judson over the telephone Sunday afternoon. He said he had been a good law-abiding citizen had refrained from drinking and visiting questionable public places according to the stipulations in his parole agreement.

Although Parole Officer Judson could not smell Christensen's breath over the phone, he got a hunch that his charge had taken one nip too many, judging from the tone of his conversation. The officer went to Gladstone and found Christensen in a drunken condition.

He will be arraigned before Judge Frank A. Bell today for violation of his parole agreement.

Girl Badly Burned In Oven Explosion

Miss Ruby Brown, sixteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs Henry Brown 409 So. 16th street was badly burned about the face and chest Sunday at the family home when a gas oven exploded. Mrs. Brown was baking a cake and had lit the gas oven also closed the oven door. Suddenly the door blew open and a sheet of flame swept out towards the girl who was standing near by, inflicting painful burns. Mrs Brown put the fire out and closed the gas jet preventing the spread of the fire. A physician was called who dressed the burns.

No damage was done at the home but members of the family who were in the house at the time were extremely frightened and Mr. Brown who is manager of the Strand Theatre was called home immediately.

The injured girl was resting more comfortably last night and will recover.

Mrs. Anna Cass, at Family Reunion, Recalls Old Days

BY ADRIENNE TOUSIGNANT

Easter Sunday was a happy day for Mrs. Anna Cass, 219 South Eighteenth street, and members of her family who assembled at Grenier's hall for a family reunion which is an annual affair in the family. Mrs. Cass, who is a pioneer resident of the city, was born at Corunna, Mich., April 27, 1859, and later went to the Copper Country with her parents. The family lived for some time at the Delaware Mine location and later at the Pennsylvania Mine location. She came to this city with her mother and brothers when a child of ten years and later married the late John R. Cass who died in this city twenty years ago.

MRS. ANNA CASS

For a short time the couple made their home at old Fort Howard, Wis., now West Green Bay, and it was while living there that her eldest son, Thomas, was born on Easter Sunday, April 23. Shortly afterwards the family moved to this city and have lived here continuously.

Easter Sunday has always been the day of days in the Cass family and only once did Easter fall on the same date as the year in which he was born. That was when he was eleven years of age and his parents give him a birthday party on that day.

Mrs. Cass recalled many of the days when she attended school in this city. The little white school which stood where the Carnegie library now stands was where she was educated. The older boys in the school were the late D. A. Oliver, Dennis Glavin, James Murphy, Daniel, Maurice and John Kelly and these "big boys" took the smaller girls to school on homemade sleds.

Where the Cass home is located, 219 South Eighteenth street, was a dense wild wood. She and her brothers went there to pick berries but she never was allowed to go in the woods alone.

Recalls Early Days.

Mrs. Cass recalled an incident which happened here when she was a young lady. A little boy who lived near the old cemetery which is now Stephenson avenue, was lost and he was found five days later near what is now Lake Shore Drive, near the old Escanaba brewery. He had died in the dense forest with his head resting on a log. This was the talk of the town for years and children feared the woods more than before.

Wells at that time was an Indian village and the children were afra'd of the Indians, so they never ventured very far from home in that direction. When the Indians came to the city to buy supplies for their families the children ran and hid in their homes.

Mrs. Cass has seen this city grow from a village of seventy-five families to its present population of 16,000, and has taken a keen interest in the erection of public and residential buildings—the churches, schools, city hall and court house, the jails and hospitals, the business houses.

Mrs. Cass has enjoyed good health until four years ago when she fell at her home and injured a knee. For some time she was unable to walk but during the past few months has gained strength and now is able to attend to some of the household duties. She hears well and uses glasses only when reading or doing fine needlework.

Saturday, April 27, will be the seventieth anniversary of her birth and on that day she will keep open house and her many friends and the residents of the city will be welcome to call at the family home, and greet her on that day.

Reared Large Family.

Mrs. Cass has reared to womanhood and manhood all of her family of nine children. She has seven sons and two daughters, all of whom are at the family reunion with the exception of one grandson, Harold Cass, who is a student at State Teachers college, Kalamazoo. Mrs. Thomas Cass of Superior was also absent as she is spending a few weeks visiting friends in California.

The afternoon was delightfully spent in playing games, musical and vocal selections were rendered by members of the family. A sumptuous dinner was served at 6 o'clock and in the evening, while the adult members played five hundred, the children played bunco and awards were given holders of high scores in both games.

Twenty-four Grandchildren.

Those present at the reunion were Thomas Cass and daughter Helen of Superior, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. William Cass and children, Dorothy and Irving; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cass and children, Walter, Robert, Adele, Elaine and Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cass and children, John, Charlotte, Evelyn and Anna Mae; Mr. and Mrs. Edward (Ted) Cass and children, Harley, Verne, Lloyd, Marjorie, Kathleen and Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. George Cass and children, George, Jr., Edward, Frederick, Mary Rita and Michael; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cass and daughter, Co'eta Marie; Mrs. Ida Gelzer and Miss Isabelle Cass; Mrs. Cass' foster con, Floyd Gaffney, and Al Huerman of Superior.

Mrs. Cass has one brother, Thomas J. Daley, of this city. Two brothers, John and William Daley, have passed away.

Last summer Mrs. Cass visited in the Copper Country and went to see the old places where she had lived as a child. The old school house where she first attended school was still standing, but the roof had caved in. At the Pennsylvania mine where many families had formerly lived, was now deserted and nothing remained of the old home where she had lived.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are givng it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

VOGHT ON COMMISSION.

GOV. FRED W. GREEN has informed Upper Peninsula members of the legislature that he has selected Edward C. Voght of Escanaba for appointment to the conservation commission. A bill pending before the legislature requires that two of the five commissioners be Upper Peninsula men. The present commission includes only one, Norman H. Hill of Sault Ste. Marie.

This bill has not yet been passed by the legislature. It is expected that the appointment of Mr. Voght will be announced as quickly as the measure is given legislative approval. Final action is expected this week.

Edward C. Voght is one of the state's real pioneers in conservation. He has been talking, preaching and practicing conservation longer than most of his friends can remember. He has been president of the Upper Peninsula Association of Wild Life conservation clubs twice; and he was president of the state association of conservation clubs in 1923. Although he has always been an enthusiastic angler and hunter, his interest in conservation has taken on far broader aspects than the production of game merely for the pleasure of killing it. He believes that Michigan's wild life is one of the state's most valuable assets—a possession too precious to be gambled needlessly upon loose, slip-shod methods and questionable experiments.

The present conservation commission is, we believe, the best Michigan has had. Mr. Voght's whole experience and his ideas and theories fit in, splendidly, with the commission's policies.

He will be a valuable commissioner, for the Upper Peninsula and for Michigan as a whole.

STOCK SPECULATION.

DAVID LAWRENCE, in his Washington dispatch to the Press today, declares that Congress is watching closely the battle between the federal reserve board and the New York speculators and that the special session will reveal considerable congressional sentiment in favor of legislation extending the powers of the federal reserve board to prevent federal reserve money from going, unduly, into gambling.

The federal reserve board is conducting no warfare against speculation as such. If you have a thousand dollars, or a million dollars, or ten dollars, and you want to use it to bet that Consolidated Door Mat, or Rubber Geranium will go up, the board is not one bit concerned. It does not care whether the citizen puts his own money into the stock market or into the cash-and-carry junk business.

But the board does insist that a banker ought not to borrow excessive amounts of money from a federal reserve bank and then lend it in excessive quantities to you for stock market operations instead of for straight and ordinary productive business.

Then come the questions: "What is excessive? And what is unduly?"

Somebody has to rule on the limits which these terms signify. In the absence of any better authority, the federal reserve board has undertaken the definitions.

If the board, or some other agency does not now possess the power to fix these limits, it should be given such powers. The welfare of productive business which needs to borrow money, is of much more importance than the welfare of the gambler who is operating on borrowed capital.

The question is not one of morals, or even of ethics. It is one of ordinary, sound business policy.

The children got out on the White House lawn the other day and rolled Easter eggs. Some of the Washington people were surprised, as the only thing they had seen rolled in Washington was logs.

ONE DRY AGENT.

THERE IS considerable speculation among law enforcement officers of the Upper Peninsula as to the possible effect of the proposed reorganization of the dry enforcement branch of the federal government upon the situation in this territory.

The federal prohibition enforcement force in the peninsula, just now, consists of one man. He is the agent in charge of the Marquette office. He recently expressed the hope that more agents would be assigned to him in the near future, but that appears to be more of a hope than an expectation.

Obviously, one man, covering an area as large as the Upper Peninsula isn't going to be able to make much of a dent in the illicit liquor traffic, no matter how hard he tries. Nor can sheriff's departments and police departments expect a great deal in the way of cooperation from Uncle Sam. Prohibition enforcement is pretty much a local matter. In localities where the people and the officers are indifferent conditions will be lax. On the other hand, communities where the sentiment and the officers favor enforcement will be a lot dryer. There isn't anything new in that situation. It is not, nor will it be possible, for the federal government. It is not, nor will it be possible, for the federal government to furnish a force in this or any other district large enough to do more than to cooperate with local authorities.

The government can, however, provide some measure of cooperation.

That cooperation demands more than one man in an area as large as the Upper Peninsula.

FOCH'S FAMOUS DISPATCH.

ONE OF the most inspiring stories that cluster about the name of the late Marshal Foch is the story of the famous dispatch he sent Joffre during the first battle of the Marne. You remember it, of course—"My left is giving way and my right is retreating; I shall attack with my center."

It is one of those things that thrill even the most jaded. It pictures, perfectly, the dash and courage of the supreme soldier.

But now, it develops, Foch never wrote it! The whole thing, it seems, is an invention, the product of some gifted French journalist's brain.

Really, though, it doesn't matter. The dispatch tells precisely what Foch did, and the circumstances under which he did it; whether he put the words together or not is of small consequence.

CHAPTER XXVI

Ruth Lester's hand tightened convulsively over Jack Hayward's as she listened to McMann's half of the telephone conversation which the detective sergeant was carrying on with his superior officer at police headquarters.

"So Cleo skipped out Saturday noon, bag and baggage, eh?" McMann spoke into the mouthpiece, his voice registering the frown which was beetling his thick brows and snarling the corners of his mouth. "Who's on the job? . . . . play, eh? Put him on the phone if he's there now, please. . . . . Hello, Clay! What's the dope on this Gilman dame? Did she say where she was going?. . . No?. . . . Oh, back Monday or Tuesday morning, huh? Well, be on hand to welcome her home and tell her that McMann wants a chat with her. . . . Sure, go through her apartment! What do you think this is—a tea party?"

The detective slammed the receiver upon the hook, strode to the door between the private office and the outer office of the Borden suite. "Birdwell! Take Mrs. Borden and Miss Dubois down the hall and put them in Covey's charge until I need them again. He's still in that vacant suite, isn't he?"

"Yes sir—interviewing tenants who could have heard the shot fired, sir," Birdwell answered in his weary voice. "Frank Ashe, Borden's man-servant, waiting to see you."

"All right—show him in," McMann directed, as he held the door wide for Mrs. Borden and Rita to pass through, the widow thanking him with a faint, sad smile, the dancer wrapping her fur coat about her slim body with assumed nonchalance, utterly belied by the chalky pallor of her face.

As a gray-haired, anemic-looking man was about to enter the private office, McMann held him back with an arm stretched across the doorway, and turned his head to address Jack Hayward:

"That's all for the present, Hayward. Thanks for the fingerprints," and he grinned crookedly. "Guess you knew they wouldn't help us much, since you'd been here this morning after Miss Lester discovered the body. By the way, while you were out to lunch I performed an interesting experiment." He reached out for the door and closed it in the man-servant's face.

Jack Hayward's steady bronze-brown eyes did not flicker, nor did his color change. "Yes?"

"Yes! . . . When I was in your office this morning, looking for the gun you seemed to be so sure I'd find in the bottom drawer of your desk, and which wasn't there—oddly enough!—I found something else. A missing link, you might say."

"That's interesting," Jack said evenly, despite the frantic warning of Ruth's tightened fingers upon his arm. "May I ask what it was?"

"Oh—nothing much," the detective grinned. "Just a nice long 10-foot pole with a hook on the end of it—the kind of a pole that's ordinarily used to pull windows down from the top, but which—as I took pains to prove—can be used very nicely for closing windows across the eight-foot airshaft, if a chap gets just the right leverage. A nice useful pole, if a fellow very badly wants a window closed and dosen't want to be seen walking along the hall and unlocking another fellow's door in order to close it. You found it very handy, didn't you, Hayward?"

Jack's handsome face darkened with anger, but his voice was steady as he answered: "I did not close Borden's window with a pole or in any other manner, McMann. There was no reason why I should. But it must have been a very interesting experiment. Did you also demonstrate to your satisfaction how I robbed the body and secured Miss Lester's automatic, all with this very useful window pole?"

McMann's grin widened. "I admit that at noon I was a little bit worried about those details, but a charming visitor has pretty well cleared them up for me."

Ruth could remain silent no longer. Her voice quivered with anger as she lashed out at the self-satisfied detective: "That's not fair, Mr. McMann! Rita Dubois has cleared Jack by insisting that Mr. Borden was alive when she came here Saturday afternoon at 17 minutes after two, at which time Jack was with me in the Chester Hotel dining room."

The grin left McMann's broad thin mouth. He looked at the angry, trembling girl gravely, almost compassionately. "I'm sorry, Miss Lester, but what Rita Dubois says doesn't mean that to me!" and the detective snapped his fingers.

"You saw me catch her in lie after lie. The facts are all I'm interested in. Rita had a key to this office. She could have entered, whether Borden was alive or dead. She got from him—alive or dead—half of a $500 bill and 500 more in smaller bills. At least we know she got the torn half of the $500 banknote, and we can take the other money for granted, I think.

"Alive, Borden wouldn't have given her a cent until she'd come across—kept her part of the bargain, which was to go away with him and become his mistress. You heard him say so yourself. Therefore, she got the money from Borden, dead, not Borden alive!"

But Ruth was not defeated by the detective's logic. "Then you think she was so greedy that she stole my gun, too—walked out of here with the very weapon which she must have believed had killed Mr. Borden? And which did kill him! I know it did—"

McMann shrugged. "And Hayward's gun? What about that?"

Ruth tried to control her anger, to speak reasonably, convincingly: "Mr. McMann, I don't believe the disappearance of Mr. Hayward's gun has any connection at all with this case. He himself told you he owned it, where to look for it. Was that the action of a guilty man? Won't you work—just for the sake of fairness—on the theory that Mr. Hayward's gun was stolen by a petty thief, prowling through the building Saturday?

"There was a gun in these offices—please don't forget that! We know, from the thumbprints on the bottom drawer of my desk, that Mr. Borden opened that drawer, in all probability to get the gun to defend himself against threatened attack. Maybe he always kept it handy when he was alone in the office. I don't know! But he almost certainly had it in his possession or on his desk Saturday before he was killed.

"An unknown woman was in these offices some time Saturday afternoon. You have the fingerprints. I believe that Rita was telling the truth when she said that Borden was alive, that he gave her his half of the $500 bill to make his peace with her, for having missed the train to Winter Haven. After all, she had kept her part of the bargain. She had waited for him at the station; he could not know that she would ditch him after getting the money.

"The $500, for some reason, was of vital importance to Rita Dubois. Either Mr. Borden gave it to her on his own accord, or—she killed him in desperation when he refused. That is the only reason why Rita Dubois would have taken my gun away with her—because she had used it upon Harry Borden."

McMann had listened patiently, even respectfully, to Ruth's long passionately sincere speech, he asked quietly. "You don't believe that Rita killed Borden, do you, Miss Lester?"

"No! I know she lied a lot, and that she was desperate for money, but I don't believe she killed him. Neither do I believe she robbed the dead man's body. What I do believe, Mr. McMann, is that Mr. Borden's murderer—or murderess—has not yet been questioned."

McMann smiled, but not derisively. "Cleo Gilman? If she was here Saturday afternoon, she walked up—part of the way, at least. Moran, the elevator operator, seemed to be pretty sure that he had brought no other passengers to this floor."

"I wouldn't count too heavily on Micky Moran's memory, Mr. McMann," Ruth flashed. "And granting that Micky is infallible, isn't it reasonable to supose that a person coming here to see Mr. Borden after a telephone quarrel with him, a person he feared and armed himself against would have walked at least a flight or two, rather than be seen getting off the elevator right in front of Mr. Borden's offices?"

"Just a minute, Miss Lester," McMann brushed her question aside. "You refer to a telephone quarrel. Surely you're not forgetting that that telephone quarrel, or part of it, was overheard by Bill Cowan, when he was cut in on Hayward's busy line? How can you explain that? You don't think it was your petty thief, prowling through the Starbridge Building, who called up Borden and quarreld with him, after stealing Hayward's gun?"

Ruth looked staggered for a moment, then triumphant. "Telephone operators have been known to give wrong numbers as well as plugging new calls in on busy lines. Mr. Borden's telephone numbers are Main 3500 and 3501. Mr. Hayward's number is Main 3051. Mr. Cowan was formerly rather a close friend of Mr. Borden's. He could easily have given the operator the Borden number, which he must have called many times in the past, thinking that he was giving Mr. Hayward's number. Remember, he did not hear Jack's voice—only Borden's."

McMann chuckled. "You're very clever, Ruth Lester. You can have a job under me any time you like. . . . That's all for the present, Hayward. You can get back to your work."

"Thanks!" Jack bowed ironically. Then, to Ruth, in a low voice: "You're a darling and I love you."

"All right, Ashe!" McMann called through the door by which Jack was leaving.

The gray-haired man who had been Harry Borden's man-servant slipped noiselessly, diffidently, through the door, and took the chair which McMann indicated—opposite his own at Borden's desk.

"Sit down, Miss Lester," McMann invited. "I may need you. . . . Now, Ashe, how long had you been with Mr. Borden?"

"Ten months, sir."

"When did you last see your employer?"

"Saturday morning, sir. He left his apartment at half-past nine, as usual. He told me he would be out of town for the week-end and that I was to pack his bags. I was to expect him for dinner Monday evening—him and a young lady," the valet answered.

"Did he say who the young lady was?"

"Yes, sir. He said Miss Dubois would dine with him."

"Where were you Saturday afternoon, Ashe?" McMann pounced suddenly.

The valet looked startled, then faintly indignant. "I sir? I had lunch with my daughter—my married daughter, Mrs. Bernard Williams, in Washington Heights, and took her to a neighborhood movie—my daughter and her two children. At half-past four her husband met us in the lobby of the theater and all of us—"

"All right, Ashe!" McMann interrupted the iron-clad alibi impatiently. "Now tell me: have you any knowledge or suspicion as to who killed your master?"

The anemic little man straightened in his chair, then leaned forward slightly toward the detective as he said in a curiously impressive voice:

"Yes, sir, I think I have, sir!"

READY.

She went to sleep and never woke,
And thus a finer sermon spoke
Than oratory may achieve.
For we who mourn her may believe,
May know, she was as ready then
To go as if a hundred men
Of prophecy had told her when.

We know not only by the book
Beside her bed. We need but look
Upon the neatness of her shelves,
Unlike our own, unlike ourselves,
Each thing in order. Here we find
No task unfinished, left behind
No problem for some other mind.

There are no debts for friends to pay,
No scattered things to put away.
Whatever guest might seek her door
Her house was always ready for.
And when that other stranger came,
With life his gift, though death his name,
We know he found her soul the same.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The idea that a headache can be relieved by pressing the roof of the mouth with the thumb is only one of the numerous silly superstitions that are related to the relief of headache.

The earliest notion was that of the ancients, who believed that headache was due to the development within the skull of some demon of ill health and that the proper way to cure the headache was to make a hole for the demon to get out. This they did by trephining the skull, talking out a small piece of bone about the size of a button.

Skulls have been found thousands of years old which have been trephined in this way. After the trephining, the medicine man conjured forth the demon by the use of magic.

How It's Explained.

The technic of the thumb applied to the roof of the mouth serves, of course, to get the mind off the headache and on the pain in the roof of the mouth. Sometimes a temporary diversion of the attention from the headache to some other point will have this result.

Headache is not a disease in itself—it is a symptom of disease and there are innumerable causes.

The pain in the head is not always the same. It is customary to relate this to constant cause, whereas actually the same person may have different headaches at different times due to different causes.

No doubt, the amount of circulation of blood in the brain and of fluid in the spinal cord and in the brain have something to do with headache.

Poisons of various kinds are associated with headaches, as are also the beginnings of most infectious diseases. Some headaches come from exhaustion, such as that of eyestrain, worry and agitation, or disturbance of the emotions. Long exposure of the head to the sun may cause a headache, and continuous noise and confusion may produce it.

Pinching the Toe.

Thus headaches that are due to psychological conflicts, to emotions or to agitation may be relieved occasionally by distraction of the attention to other things. In such cases, pinching the toe, the wearing of some foolish mechanical device, or pressing the thumb on the roof of the mouth may seem to relieve the headache.

In cases in which there is an actual physical cause, such as a disease of the kidneys, of digestion, or an infectious disease, the treatment of the cause is far more important than the treatment of the headache.

Woman Cobbler Kept Busy

Kilsyth claims to have the champion woman cobbler of Scotland in Mrs. James Kelso, who supports her invalid husband and young son by repairing shoes. She can make a complete shoe. She has several machines in her shop and runs them with a small engine, all of which she works herself. Mrs. Kelso has been in business for more than ten years, and has built up a large following.

Child Welfare for Filipinos

Babies of the Province of Ilocos Norte are receiving the benefits of the prize money which that province recently won in the "clean-up week" contest in the Philippines. The funds were used in purchasing equipment for a traveling child welfare clinic. The outfit, on a motor truck, is visiting all towns in the province, and conducts clinics, gives instruction to mothers and performs other duties.

MARCH GOES LIKE A LION

Snowstorm Blocks Highways and Delays Railway Trains

Old Man Weather played a regular April Fool's day prank yesterday, giving the upper peninsula in general one of the worst storms of the year after everyone had settled down to enjoy the balmy spring. The month of March also ran true to tradition, coming in like a lamb and roaring out Sunday like a hungry lion.

Accompanied by a 40-mile gale, the storm brought about nine inches of snow which delayed railway trains, blocked highways and caused much discomfiture to those who had cast aside their flannels, thinking that winter had gone away for a long, long time.

Huge Drifts of Snow.

Drifts of five and six feet of snow were found in the cuts as the Delta county road commission's snowplowing crews cleared the highways. All main trunk lines in the county were opened yesterday afternoon, County Engineer R. P. Mason reported last night. As usual, the eastern and northern end of the peninsula was in worse shape than here, but H. I. Davies, division highway engineer, expected that all the state-maintained roads would be opened again to traffic throughout by noon today. The snow was light, offering little resistance to the plows, and what aided the snow removal work also was that there was plenty of room alongside the roads because of the spring thaw for depositing the snow.

Began Sunday Morning.

The storm began about 6 o'clock Sunday morning and continued with undiminished intensity until about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The heavy gale caused much drifting, and it was difficult for pedestrians and motorists to see more than a hundred feet ahead of them yesterday morning. The temperature hovered a few points above 20 degrees throughout the storm period.

Chicago & North Western trains coming from the south were running far behind schedule, but those from the north were little hindered. Train No. 101 was about six hours late, and Nos. 217 and 121 about four hours. Street cars operated from a half to one hour behind schedule in the morning, but service resumed normalcy in the afternoon.

Uses Three Engines.

Three locomotives were used on Train No. 101 at Green Bay to pull her out of the yards. Some 25 to 30 automobiles were reported stalled in the drifts in and near Little Suamico. Wisconsin appeared to suffer the worst part of the storm. Wire communications between Green Bay and Milwaukee were severely crippled, but little damage was reported by the Bell Telephone company in Upper Michigan.

Upper peninsula bus service was cancelled yesterday morning, but without doubt will be resumed today.

The city had its three plows out yesterday. The Nelson snow loader will not be used as it is expected that the sun will be capable of performing the snow removal job on Ludington street unassisted. City Manager T. F. Kessler said last night.

Connelly Sees Area Destroyed by Flood

P. J. Connelly, traffic manager of the Escanaba Paper company, returning from a business trip through the south, passed through a large part of the territory swept by recent floods in the foothills of Cumberland mountains. One river which normally has a level of 12 feet rose to a 54-foot level, Mr. Connelly said, with a current so swift that steel "gondola" cars were swept from railroad tracks, one of them being deposited upon the roof of a building. The property damage in the district will amount to millions of dollars, he said. Mr. Connelly was one of the passengers on the first train sent through the flooded area by the Southern Railway after the flood.

Arraignments, Arranging of Docket Main Business Today

Jurors drawn for the April term of the Delta county circuit court have been notified to report for service at the courtroom at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The term opens this morning, but most of the day will be taken up by calling of the calendar and the arraignment of defendants in the criminal cases.

The jurors selected for this terms are as follows:

TO MAN FIRE TOWERS SOON

Department of Conservation Watchmen Take Posts April 15

Watchmen will be assigned to the fire towers and other members of the conservation department's forces will be actively engaged in guarding against and fighting forest fires on April 15, it was announced yesterday. The manning of the towers was scheduled to start yesterday but on account of the heavy snowstorm this was deemed unnecessary.

Herman Leisner, district conservation officer, and Hugh McMillan, assistant conservation officer, will direct the work in District No. 5, comprising the counties of Delta and Menominee. Before starting the patrolling of the woods, the fire wardens will be engaged in making improvements to the fire tower grounds and in overhauling the fire fighting equipment. Flower beds will be placed at all towers in this district, there being four in all, located at Rapid River, Watson, Stephenson and Powers.

Two 100-foot towers of steel construction were erected at Rapid River and Watson last summer. On a clear day, it is possible for the towermen to sight fires within a radius of 40 miles.

A total of 1,209,944 acres of land is watched by the conservation department workers of this district. Last year, there were 52 forest fires over 2615 acres of land. The cost of suppressing these blazes was $1482.

Smokers caused most of the fires, 27 of the 52 being charged to the careless user of pipe and cigaret. Other causes were as follows: railroads 8; campfires 9; brushburning 5, and miscellaneous 3.

The musical program by the choir who rendered "The Chorus Angelic" at the morning service and the anthem "Lift Up Your Head" at the evening service is deserving of much credit for the excellent program. In the evening Rev. Williams showed several pictures by celebrated artists and these were very attractive. The subjects "Head of Christ," "The Women at the Cross," "The Last Supper" and others were magnificient and the large audience was greatly moved by the beauty of the pictures. Added to the stereopticon views were the musical numbers Brimley Philips accompanying himself on the organ sang "Oh Saviour's Head One Wounded" and Mrs. Ethel Dewey Markham rendered two violin solos which were exceptionally fine. Rev. Williams preached an eloquent sermon on the Resurrection of Christ. ## Rudiments Of Flying

Editors Note:— The third of a series of ten weekly articles relating a student's experiences learning to fly, prepared by C. Harold Wescoat, president and general manager of the Upper Peninsula Airways, Inc., Escanaba, Michigan.

Gradually the student is beginning to feel at home in the air. After the completion of another hour's instruction in the Swallow training plane of the U. P. Airways, Inc., he is beginning to lose that feeling of uneasiness that everyone experiences when they first take to the air. A sudden dip of the wing or the nosing up or down of the plane no longer causes a feeling of fear, because he has learned that a slight movement of the controls will correct the plane and bring it back into proper balance or back onto its course.

He now begins to enjoy flying. The first few times up at the controls he is too busy watching every movement that the ship makes and has not yet thoroughly learned their true purpose. The instructor informed him before the take-off that the coming hour is to be spent doing intentional skids, slips and stalls. The Swallow is higher than usual, the student looks at the altimeter and reads 3000 feet altitude. The stick wobbles between the student's knees, a signal from the instructor for attention. He holds his forefinger on the top of his head meaning he will take full charge of the ship. The stick eases back and the throttle goes full out. The nose of the ship climbs higher and higher above the horizon and the engine's roar seemingly decreases with the increased climb. The controls become lax and the ship hangs motionless with its nose high in the air. This is the stalling point and the ship hesitates and falls temporarily out of control until the force of gravity pulls the nose earthward. The student feels a slight sinking sensation as the ship's nose drops, but after a few seconds the controls tighten and are again effective and the ship is again righted. He is next given some gentle stalls and gradually works up to whip stalls. After he becomes accustomed to these he can detect when the ship approaches stalled flight and thus avoid "falling off".

Having had his share of stalls and mastered them, the instructor again signals for the controls and the student observes carefully the actions of the ship as it is out into an exaggerated skid. He is shown why too much rudder in turns will cause a blast of air on his cheek on the outside of the turn. He swish-tails the ship after following through this movement with the instructor and acquaints himself with the side blasts. He feels that when flying alone if his turns are incorrect he will be able to detect the slightest skid. Swish-tailing, be it understood, is a term used to designate the turning or yawing of the tail around the ship's vertical axis. It is commonly spoken of as the "brakes" of the ship as it slows up its forward motion.

Next in order come the slips. The ship glides down toward the center of the turn The beginner at first wonders what it is all about but by simple corrections made by depressing the lower rudder bar the slipping stops. Intentional slipping is invaluable knowledge to a pilot and it is strongly emphasized at the Upper Peninsula Airways', Inc., flying school.

The Swallow then spirals downward. The student sees the bright orange hangar in the large field. The throttle is eased further back and he wonders if the ship is flying fast enough to sustain itself. The tail of the plane drops slowly and as the plane's speed decreases. While yet a foot or so off the ground the tail is brought down in landing position, and the wheels bump lightly over the turf. Before the rolling has stopped the instructor opens the engine again and the tail rises. By this time the student begins to know how to guide the ship in a straight course on the take-offs. Gracefully the ship soars in a climbing turn, flattens off high above a far corner of the field, turns smoothly and then comes down for a cross wind landing. The instructor points to the lowered position of the wing on the windward side, to emphasize that to prevent wiping off the undercarriage on a cross wind landing a gentle bank into the wind is necessary to compensate for side drift. A few feet off the ground the ship is leveled and alights on three points, the two wheels and the tail skid. The student is now capable of taxying the ship and takes it to the hangar. The "whys" and "wherefors" of the handling of the ship in the last flight are carefully explained to him. Things that have puzzled him are rehearsed in detail. He asks: "Why did the right wing go up when I applied the left rudder to the skids?" He is given concise explanations for every action of the plane and thereby daily acquires information which eventually becomes a part of his flying and makes him a smooth performer.

In the next article, which will appear on this page next week, I will tell of the student's experience flying in "bumpy" air.

If there are any questions on flying that you may wish to know, write to the Chief Instructor, Upper Peninsula Airways, Inc., Escanaba, Michigan. He will answer them.

EASTER STORM HITS TRAFFIC, VOTING LIGHT

Out of glowering Easter Day skies, Manistique received a blizzard which rivaled those of winter for severity. The snow was deep enough yesterday to seriously hinder traffic, and was badly drifted in places. It was a real April fool day prank of the weather man.

The weather Sunday wasn't stimulative to any Easter fashion parade, but snow didn't begin to fall until evening. Then it s'arted in earnest, and the storm held over into Monday morning. The temperature was moderating, but there was enough snow and high wind to make the blizzard a bad one.

Election day suffered from the storm, and the vote was very light Monday in the general spring balloting, especially noticeable in the townships where contests for offices served to stimulate interest.

Snow Plows Out

At some places in the city the drifts were piled higher than they have been at any time during the last winter, and on the streets cars without chains made slow progress. City snow plows were out early, clearing sidewalks, and the tractor plow patrolled the streets, opening up routes to the polling places first.

Out on the highways, truck plows battled the blow, and the trunk line was kept open, although the continued wind kept narrowing down the track. The Cooks hill, always a bad spot in blizzards, was open to travel, but the snow was piling high, and the county highway commission was prepared to send out the rotary plow to widen the snow gorges if the blow did not abate. Snow fences had been taken down, and most of the snow removal equipment had been put away for the season, but the present arrangement of county sheds make it easily accessible, and plow crews were able to get an early start Monday.

SERMON OF THE WEEK

"The Homeland" is the topic of the Easter sermon, delivered by Rev. H. W. Colenso Sunday evening at Alice-Grace Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, which is Gladstone's sermon of the week:

"The Homeland" John, 14.2

"Christ has proved to the world that He is not holden of death. The Resurrection is a historical fact, its witnesses were reliable and the institution of the Lord's Day in itself bears witness to that fact—the fact that gave us our Christian civilization, that transformed men's lives and that is even down to today a gladsome message of hope to the world.

"Christ saw beyond the mysteries of Calvary. Before His coming we lived in beginning only, but He opened the door to another world. This is the promise of God, the prophesy of the ages, and Christ in His death for our salvation gave us the noblest conception of the future life and a clear understanding of the sane, serene, spacious, pure, ethical spirit which is Jesus.

"The wisdom of the Infinite, the ending the judgment and the glories to come are unknown to us.

"'Is the soul of man imortal?' is the never ceasing question and the great cry is, 'Watchman, tell us of the night.' This much is certain, the end of life is not here. In 399 B. C. Socrates said, 'You may bury me if you can catch me,' and his belief is that of all ages, even though the impulse to look into the beyond is irresistible.

"'They made the sepulchre sure,' Scripture tells us. It is true that man is elemental in his dealings and for this reason he has much to learn. Cold philosophy cannot surmont omnipotency and could they only know it, it would have been far easier for them to stop the sun in its course or the waves in their ebb and flow, for the forces of God are impregnable.

Infinite Is Unmeasured

"The old school failed because it tried to find the soul by weights and spiritual things cannot be weighed or measured. How many are able to weigh faith and love? They are beyond the power of the mathematician.

"Life beyond the grave holds the key to present mysteries and the behalf in immortality is natural as man has ever been seeking some means to return to God. Simon Magus thought he could buy his way into eternity; the Pharisees thought that they could enter by prayer, but in both cases the emphasis was placed upon the outward, to the neglect of inward purity and Jesus called them whited sepulchres.

"Luther tried fast, but he found no peace until he heard the spirit, 'the just shall live by faith'. 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God,' is the answer, in every instance.

"'He is Risen'—Easter—explains all miracles in its conquest over death; Easter is showing us the way back home, the narrow way but one that is sure. We are traveling homeward and on the road there should be no word of lamentation, but only the remembrance of Jesus' words, 'Go tell My disciples that I go before them into an act of the most natural kind.'

"The Homeland is the fitting end of a weary day, not painful but the end of pain, our sleep in Jesus. Christ has defeated death on the open highway. Christ met death at the crossroads of the world and he has said, 'In My Father's house are many mansions.'"

"We shall awake in that Homeland, greatly refreshed, where will be all those who live in Christ Jesus, in a heaven in which nothing can enter that would disturb, in a land of real love united, with misunderstandings shut out, and the mist cleared away, the promise of the Redeemer when he said, 'I go to prepare a place for you,' and 'Because I live, Ye shall live also.'"

REV. H. W. COLENSO,
Alice-Grace Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church.

FAMOUS FILM OPENS TONIGHT AT RIALTO

"King of Kings" Showing in Gladstone 3 Days.

One of the greatest events of the picture season here will be the premier showing of Cecil B. De Mille's "King of Kings," at the Rialto tonight. This picture has enjoyed a sensational success in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, and has been more widely discussed by press, clergy and laity than any other motion picture since "The Birth of a Nation."

The causes of the popularity of "The King of Kings" are not far to seek. Among them are the world's greatest story, the reverent dramatization of the life of Christ; superb acting of eighteen stars; 500 well-known players and 5,000 extra people; the restoring of a historical period in buildings, scenes, properties and costumes exceeding in elaborateness even "Ben-Hur"; and above all a vision that truly realizes the infinite tenderness, humanity and uplift of the New Testament story.

Local theatregoers are looking forward with great interest to H. B. Warner's embodiment of the title role. Among the other characters portrayed are St. Peter played by Ernest Torrence; the Magdalene, Jacqueline Logan; Mary Mother, Dorothy Cumming; the Roman Centurion, Montagu Love; Simon of Cyrene, William Boyd; Mary and Martha of Bethany, Josephine Norman and Julia Faye. Other fine characterizations are those of the two Schildkrauts as Caiaphas and Judas, Victor Varconi as Pilate, Sam De Grasse as the Pharisee, and Theodore Kosloff as the servant of the High Priest.

CITY HAS LOW FIRE LOSS FOR YEAR

During the year, the report shows, property valued at $161,550, was endangered by fires.

Insurance coverage on the threatened property amounted to $65,650.

The Gladstone department answered sixty-seven calls during the year. Of these 25 were general alarms, thirty-nine still alarms, and three false alarms.

Credit Situation Brings Sharp Stock Break

CALL RATE AT 15 PER CENT

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Ass'd Press Financial Writer)

New York, Apr. 1—(AP) —The stock market resumed operations after its three-day holiday today only to find itself again enmeshed in the snarls of the credit situation. A secondary reaction of considerable severity developed, a long list of important issues selling off from 5 to more than 20 points.

A reaction after the sharp break and too rapid recovery last week was not surprising, but the continued scarcity of call money, and the disturbing public discussions of the handling of credit during the marked holidays, unsettled confidence and greatly augmented the selling arising from the technical condition of the market. The pace of trading fell off, however, only 4,162,830 shares changing hands, and if general stocks did not break through the low levels of last Tuesday.

Call money renewed at 10 percent in contract to 8 percent at Thursday's close, and then mounted successively to 12 and to 15, equalling Thursday's renewal rate. The accumulation of selling orders over the week-end carried prices off sharply in a busy opening. A rather feeble rally around midday was checked by the 12 percent rate, but several issues rallied briskly in the last hour, despite the 15 percent rate.

Further adjustments of balances incident to the quarterly settlements, and the fact that it will take until Wednesday to clear the bulk of the quarterly payment checks, served to keep money tight. After the storm of criticism levelled at Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank for aiding the market last week, bankers were reluctant to help the market today, and the flow of funds from Europe was cut off because of the church holiday there.

The threat of the ordering of a congressional investigation of credit and speculation at the coming of a congressional investigation of credit and speculation at the coming special session caused misgivings among the speculative community, as much investigations have invariably been attended by unsettlement of the market. The federal reserve in Washington caused considerable uneasiness, as usual of late, although Secretary Mellon said afterward that the New York situation was not discussed.

Business news continued favorable. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck reported record March sales, and the early reports of automobile manufacturers bore out predictions of a record March production.

Further evidences of the buoyancy of copper appeared in 1928 earnings reports of inspiration, showing $2.93 a share against 62 cents in 1927, and Magma, showing $4.78 against $2.02. Miami Copper steped up its annual dividends rate to $4 from $2. Zinc was stepped up $3 to $44, the highest in years.

The bulk of important shares regained from 1-3 to 1-2 of their extreme losses of the day in the late rally. International Telephone, which sold up vigorously last week on rumors of a merger with R C A Communications, dropped 22½ points on the announcement that no immediate consolidation is under consideration. At the close, however, its net loss was but 13½ points. Radio sold down 11 points, and regained 5. American Telephone regained 4 points of a 9-point drop.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

New York, April 1—(AP)—The record of commercial failures for the first quarter of 1929, showing reductions in the number of defaults and the amount of liabilities involved, was the most encouarging for that period since 1926, R. G. Dun & Co. reported today. Insolvencies totaled 6,487 against 7,055 in the corresponding 1928 period and 6,643 in the 1927 period. Liabilities involved amounted to $124,268,608 against $147,519,198 last year and $156,121,853 two years ago.

Reports of record March automobile production began to reach Wall Street today. Chevrolet Motor Car company reported new high output of 147,274 cars and trucks against 121,249 in February and 133,657 in March, 1928. Marmon Motor Car company announced a record month. Other reporting companies showed substantial increases in March production.

Southern Museum Given Relics Of Jefferson Davis

Richmond, Va. (AP)—A Bible prized by Jefferson Davis and other relics of the president of the Southern confederacy have been acquired by the confederate museum here. They are the gift of S. S. Cummins of Easthampton, N. Y.

The collection includes a bronze match safe which hung on the tent pole at the time Mr. Davis was captured and later served as a vase for him at Fort Monroe; a bracelet given by Mrs. Davis to a friend; photographs of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their children, and two letters written by Mrs. Davis.

In the Bible, written in the hand of Jefferson Davis is this this inscription:

"To Miss Cummins as a token of sincere regard and esteem of her friend, Jefferson Davis."

In the corner is "Lennoxville" (Canada) and the date "17 July, 1868." On the flyleaf are several quotations from the Bible.

IT'D BE A SHIN NOT TO PRINT THIS

All work and no publicity makes press agents dull boys—in the eyes of their bosses—so at last they figured out something they thought newspaper editors might k-need. Flo Ziegfeld's glorified cuties ankled up to a Broadway theater to have their limbs measured in an effort to find "the average leg," which will be cast in bronze and shown throughout the country. Pretty nifty, eh? Three of the little Broadway Calf Club girls are on exhibition above—left to right, Betty Dumbris, Meredith Howard and Collette Ayres.

Rediscount Rate Increase Fear Hammers Bonds

New York, April 1—(AP)—Sharp breaks in a few convertible issues featured in otherwise dull bond market today. The general list was extremely irregular, with about a score of issues dropping into new low ground for the year on liquidation inspired by fears of an early increase in federal reserve rediscount rates. Total sales were only $9,896,000.

Anaconda Copper 7s broke 14 points to 231 in sympathy with a break in the stock and then rallied to 234. The bonds have sold as high as 268 and as low as 187 this year. International Telephone debenture 4½s, which recorded a spectacular advance last week to a new high record at 131, dropped back to 123 and rallied to 124½, or six points below last Thursday's final quotation. Trading in these two issues comprised more than one-tenth of the day's entire volume of business.

Foreign bonds presented a few points of strength.

Railroad mortgages were mixed.

United States government issues were mixed.

New York, April 1—(AP)—Marking up of call money rate to 15 per cent and fears of a congressional investigation of stock market operations brought a rush of selling in the curb market today which sent prices down one to 62 points. Many of the losses were reduced in the closing hour, but with the exception of a sprinkling of stocks, the entire list closed behind minus signs.

Although a few issues established new lows for the year, the declines in the general list were not as wide as in last week's break under 20 per cent call money.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 1—Tumbling down of grain values today went side by side with fresh breaks in the stock market. Meanwhile, monthly unofficial crop estimates issued here today were in general construed as bearish, and moisture in Canada as well as in domestic wheat territory tended further to induce lower prices. Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-4 at 1 7-8 to 2 1-8 net lower. Corn finished 1c to 1¼c lown, oats ½ to ½c off, and provisions carying from 5c decline to a rise of 15c.

News of late rallies in the stock market were not received until after grain trade ended, with wheat closing at but little above the day's bottom figures. On the other hand, the fact that stocks showed a big early plunge downward was known here before the wheat market opened, and was a decided factor in turning many grain traders to the selling side. In addition, the April 1 crop reports of leading private authorities, although about in line with average trade expectance were indicative of a domestic winter wheat condition of around 81.2 per cent and an acreage abandonment of about 8 per cent, much better than last year.

Rains in the southwest and additions to the moisture supply northwest, especially in Canada, were regarded as helpful to the crop outlook, and thus an incentive to wheat sellers.

Corn and oats declined owing to sympathy with wheat weakness.

Provisions were firmer early, responsive to an upturn in hog values, but later reflected the weakness of grain.

POTATOES.

Chicago, April 1 (U. S. Dept. Agri.)—Potatoes, receipts 152 cars, on track 337, total U. S. shipments Saturday 743, Sunday 24 cars; slow, market dull; Wisconsin sacked Round Whites 50 at 65c; Minnesota and North Dakota sacked Round Whites 55 at 65c; Idaho sacked Russets $1.45 at $1.65; fancy shade higher.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN.

Minneapolis, April 1—Wheat futures opened weak today on private reports covering the crop outlook in the southwest and failed to recover the early loss. Local news was unchanged. Flour trade was sluggish and shipping instructions on old and maturing contracts were hard to secure.

Chinese Generals Seek Peaceful End To Reign of Terror

Chefoo, Shantung, China, Apr. 2—(AP)—The severe fighting of yesterday at Ninghaichow was halted and today the rival commanders were reported in financial negotiations looking for peaceful solution of the struggle for supremacy.

Today it was said thtat he had offered $50,000 (gold) to the nationalists commander, General Liu Chen-Nien, for his surrender, but the latter was reputed to be holding out for $250,000.

While this city is unharmed, although the situation is tense, missionaries report that a virtual reign of terror exists throughout the countryside from Lungkow eastward almost to Chefoo.

BELGIAN LEADS BUNION DERBY

Two Automobiles of Colorful Caravan Seized on Writs

Trenton, N. J., Apr. 1—(AP)—Finishing second in today's 46-mile lap, Juul Cools of Belgium took the lead today for the first two laps of the 1929 edition of C. C. Pyle's Transcontinental Bunion Derby. Cools, third yesterday, came in behind Paul Simpson of Burlington, N. C., today.

Simpson won the 46.4 mile jaunt from Elizabeth to Trenton by a good margin, in six hours, ten minutes, 50 seconds. Cools, finishing today in 6:24:20 beat him out by only a few seconds in the two day total.

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman finished third today, outrunning Ed Gardner, dusky Seattle, Wash., pavement pounder, who won the first lap. Gardner came in fourth today nearly six minutes behind Salo.

Voight Houfstater, of Manistee, Mich., was fifth today in 6:39:05. His total elapsed time is 8:54:20.

Trenton officials refused to allow Pyle to pitch his tents and stage his show here, so the caravan had to proceed arcoss the Deleware river to Morrisville, Pa., from where they will start tomorrow.

Writs Already

Pyle ran into a writ of attachment here and two of the brightly painted automobiles of the entourage were seized. Andy Payne, winner of last year's derby, was the driver of one of the machines.

The suit was instituted by a Trenton firm which claimed $800 was unpaid for 1,000 chairs purchased to use in the side show that accompanies the party.

Louis J. Perella of Albany, N. Y., was unable to start this morning because of an injured ankle.

Merle A. Trap of Atchison, Kans., also dropped out. He was struck by an automobile yesterday. He made a game effort to continue today, running seven miles and walking ten more before he quit.

NAT'L MEET OPENS TODAY

Basketball Quintets Practice for First Round Contests

Chicago, Apr. 1—(AP)—Basketball sharpshooters from 33 states smacked balls against the backguards at Bartlett gymnasium for hours today in their final drill for the University of Chicago's Eleventh Annual National Interscholastic Tournament.

Although the championship struggle does not start until tomorrow morning, when Raton New Mexico, and Portsmouth, N. H., tangle, the gymnasium was almost packed with spectators desiring to see the teams practice.

Big teams, like the Athens, Texas, outfit with six foot plus giants, mingled with tiny squads such as Valley City, N. D., a team that averages 145 pounds and has a 126 pound star forward. It was a setting of strange contrasts.

Winnemuca, Nevada, caused a furore today by demanding a police escort for protection from the station to the gymnasium. It was granted to players, who arrived with their cowboy outfits and sombreros.

Another team that attracted attention was a rangy band of mountaineers from Heath, Ky. The Kentuckians, heralded as a great passing team, had no gym at home and were forced to practice outdoors on rough ground.

Tomorrow's first round schedule, starting with the Raton-Portsmouth battle, calls for games every hour until 10 p. m. The opening game starts at 10 a. m. The other games, in orded tomorrow are:

Wheeler, Miss., vs. Winnemuca, Nev.; Wheatland, Wyo., vs. Jena, La.; Heath, Ky., vs. Hartford, Vt.; St. Paul, Neb., vs. Naugatuck, Conn.; Miles City, Mont., vs. Newport News, Va.; Athens, Tex., vs. Cleveland, Tenn.; Morton, Cicero, Ill., vs. Central, Oklahoma City; Valley City, N. D., vs. Lakeland, Fla.; Ashland, Ky., vs. Independence, Mo.; Classen, Oklahoma City., vs. Monticello, Miss., and Granite, Salt Lake City, vs. Brockton, Mass.

Former Fistic Idol Penniless

Omaha, Neb., April. 1—(AP)—It was no April Fool's day for Morrie Schlaifer, former idol of fistic fandom, reputed to possess $50,000 in 1925.

Morrie, once a "Good Time Charley" to his friends, was ejected from his hotel room and his clothing held in lieu of $60 room bill. Today he sought a job—this man who once fought Mickey Walker for the worlds boxing crown.

His only possession, with the exception of the clothes he wears, is an oil painting of himself made in 1922 by Grant House, an artist.

All-Escanaba Quintet Picked by St. Louis

For the first time in the history of the game, amateur basketball was played on an organized basis, this year. A city league comprising nine teams all sponsored by some responsible organization, was formed, schedules were drawn enabling each team to play every other team in the circuit once, and the winner of the league was the acknowledged champions of Escanaba and environs. As a fitting climax to an eventful and enthusiastic series of league games, a city tournament was arranged and sponsored by the High School Athletic Association at the conclusion of league play. The tournament was a marked success from every conceivable angle. On the whole amateur basketball enjoyed a splendid season in this city.

It has been a custom of several years duration to make a selection of the individuals whose play stood out during the season, grouping them together into imaginary teams and combinations for the purpose of endeavoring to arrive at the strongest possible line-ups as well as according the individuals placed, some slight need of recognition for talent and ability on the basketball floor.

Whereas in the past, selections have been arrived at only by indulging in wholesale conjecture and permitting the imagination free rein, it is possible this year by an exhaustive scansion of both team and individual records, to set forth the outstanding players of the various teams with some degree of accuracy and justice, due to improved organization and published results of games and individual performance.

Ban Removed.

The ban on High School letter men was removed and the natural result was an improved standard of play and a greater distribution of team strength. This inevitably tended to make the teams better matched than in previous years and made team competition keener than ever before. A very gratifying phase in the development of the game.

The task of selecting the All Escanaba Teams this year is an involved, laborious and painful procedure. Only by combining the opinions of several individuals who were in constant and intimate touch with local basketball throughout the entire year is it possible to make the personnel of the teams representative in any respect or of any tangible worth.

Forwards Rockberg, Andrews

Out of a host of fine forwards, every team in the city boasting at least one, Rockberg, Wolverine Captain is chosen for a first team berth. Rockberg's individual brilliance accounted in a large measure for the fine showing his team made. He is a good shot from any position on the court, dribbles well, is fast and aggressive and has experience.

Andrews, Rambler speed merchant was without the slightest doubt, the best forward in the city. The ease and frequency with which the Blonde Meteor penetrated opposing defenses occasioned much arching of eyebrows and adjusting of monacles on the part of the cash customers and clientale who were privileged to see the sea-going little Chorine perform. He dispensed field goals with a lavish and impartial hand. Fleet afoot, agile and the heady possessor of a bewildering change of pace, he roamed local courts all year sometimes molested but never stopped. His offensive tactics consisted of wandering around the court apparently in aimless and detached fashion, waiting for the inevitable break. After that it was sorrowful and aggrieving. His sorties, made possible by an inordinate speed of movement and finished basketball technique enabled him to help himself to from 8 to 22 points per game. A valuable and esteemed member of the aggregation he played with, and a source of horror and dread to opposing guards. Endowed with a good eye for the basket and a thorough basic knowledge of the game Andrews was the class of forwards who played amateur basketball in Escanaba this year.

Miller, Packer Ace, and Dube, hard-working and rangy Rambler "B" star, are awarded berths on the second team. These men played consistantly flashy basketball for their respective teams all year and none will question their ability or worth.

Of the remainder, Harold Christianson of the Baracas who is one of the best shots from the floor in the city, and Berglund, Roughouser mainstay who at various times performed at forward, center, and running guard, were the best. Berglund is a reliable player and plays a fine passing game.

There were several men whose play merits them passing mention despite the fact that they were not in the line-up during the entire season. Had these men played in every game there is little doubt that they would have been placed on the various teams. Prominent among these men are John Gafner, one of the finest men ever developed in Escanaba. William Schram who suffered injuries that kept him from his team's line-up a large part of the season, and Lambert of the Roughousers.

Reidy at Center.

The center berth is almost a toss-up between Reidy of the Roughousers and Schou of the Packers. Reidy was the most consistant player in his position in the league, and easily the best defensive center of the lot. He passes well, shoots accurately and works well with his mates. Schou was unfortunate in that he was convicted of four felonies in several of his team's most important games. He controled the tip-off nicely, was a tireless and effective cog in his team's offense and his work under the basket was in a class by itself. His play on the whole however was not quite up to his high standard of play in previous years. Tournquist, is picked for the tip-off position on the third team. The talented and driving choirboy had few supervisors at the pivot position. He worked under the basket with vigor and abandon, and threw baskets with particular verve and elan. A vastly improved player in every respect.

DeMars, diminutive Rambler Captain is given the floor guard position. The Rambler Mite was consistantly brilliant all year. He is the type of player who is at his best in crucial games. In addition to his shooting and dribbling ability he has basketball intelligence in profuse quantities. DeMars was the hub of the attack that carried his team through to the championship in both the City League and the Tournament. None will dispute the wily little Nomad's right to a position on any team. In his team's most important games he came through beautifully, his accurate passing and floor generalship spelling disaster for his opponents.

Bobby Johnson can do almost everything equally well. He possesses the physique essential to the hard driving game he plays. He can shoot accurately on the dead run, pass, dribble, pivot and is a master at delayed offense. A dangerous man who was the main reason his team was able to maintain the fast pace they set and carried on through the long season.

Ingebrigtsen, Herringchoker, was the best player on his team. He played both guard positions, and at times saw action at forward. With a stronger team, this man would have been a real star.

Most Valuable Player.

Unquestionably the most valuable player in the entire city was Melvin Manthe, the Rambler's great back guard. The amiable blonde stood out head and shoulders above any other guard in the league and is rated by many as the best defensive man ever developed in Escanaba. A student of the game, he was able to diagnose opponents plays and break them up as fast as they were set in motion. An adept at man to man defense, and a five-man defense by himself. Despite his physical prowess he scrupulously refrains from fouling an opponent, and has never been removed from a game for rough play. He is a genius at depriving an opponent of the ball without confiding in him, a delicate and somewhat difficult operation. Scoring proclivities were constrained to a pronounced minimum in his territory.

Manthe possesses a beautiful straight left which he uses with devastating effect in the infighting, but invariably emerges unscathed with the ball reposing gently in his grasp. His defensive methods are delightfully primitive. Many an enterprising and ambitious forward started a game in a delirium of hope and ended it in the throes of dementia praecox as a result of this man's uncanny ability to ruin with finality and completeness, the occasional scoring opportunities of the opposition. Working obviously on the ridiculously simple and infallaceous theory that the team which scores the least points will lose the game, he not infrequently took it upon himself to hold two and sometimes three men scoreless for an entire game. Forwards entrusted to his tender care speedily became docile and domesticated. He is sagacious and alert at all times. It is impossible to adequately describe this man without a constant resort to superlatives. He is an epitome of all that is desirable in a basketball player. Practically his team's whole defense, he played his part in a casual and refreshing manner that belied his effectiveness until one played against him. Under his restraining influence the highest scoring men in the league failed dismally to increase their scoring records. When Manthe guarded a man, that man remained guarded. He is awarded the captaincy almost mechanically.

Second only to Manthe in general effectiveness is Tommy Powers, hard fighting Packer guard. Powers develiped rapidly under the excellent tutelage of Coach Dennis McGinn and was a decided factor in the successes his team encountered throughout the year.

Bloomquist, Wolverines, were other capable back guards who held their own nicely. The Tiger was especially effective in advancing the ball into scoring territory.

It would be impossible to mention every valuable player in proportion to his ability with any degree of exactness. The foregoing merely represents the combined opinion of those who were best qualified to comment from interest and knowledge of the game as well as through their affiliations with the players both on and off the basketball floor.

The writer is desirous of taking this opportunity to thank those whose assistance made the foregoing selections possible.

The qualities considered as basis for the selections were, courage, stamina, ability to co-ordinate, speed, aggressiveness, experience and personality, paramount qualities all, without which, a basketball player is not a basketball player

NAT'L SWIM MEET OPENS

Weismuller a Spectator as Crack Mermen Gather for Tourney

New York, April 1—(AP)—With Johnny Weismuller a mere spectator, the National Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships get under way at the New York A. C. tomorrow.

For the first time since the miracle merman from Chicago thrashed to freestyle supremacy back in 1920, there is something approaching confidence among the country's lesser speedsters as they tune up for tomorrow's opening events—the 100-meter freestyle and the 300-yard medley. Johnny turned professional a few weeks ago and is no longer in the swim.

The first of Weismuller's titles goes on the block in the classic "century" tomorrow in which Walter Laufer of Chicago, his habitual runner-up; George Kojac, New York; Walter Spence, Philadelphia; George Fissler, New York; Johnny Howland, Yale, and Johnny Bryant, Dartmouth, stand out as probable finalists.

In the grueling medley event consisting of 100 yards each of breast stroke, back stroke and freestyle, Laufer, present champion; Spence, Kojac and Austin Clapp, from Stanford university, are considered the class of the field. With twelve entrants in the 100 and eight in the medley, qualifying heats will be run off in the afternoon. All finals are at night.

Takes Lead in A.B.C. All-Events With 1794

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—St. Louis bowlers caused the only two shakeups among the leaders in the American Bowling Congress tourament today, bagging first place in the all-events and a seventh in the singles.

Toppling 1974 maples in his three events, Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis edged into the lead in the all-events.

His total gave him a wide margin over the former leader, Fred Maerzke of Watertown, Wis., who scored 1939.

J. Heidelberg, another St. Louisan, got 700, good for seventh in the singles.

SIX PERSONS ARE KILLED IN BLIZZARD

of the middlewest, reports from Wisconsin and upper Michigan indicated it struck hardest there with the worst blizzard of the year. The extent of the storm in this section could not readily be determined since telegraph and telephone lines were either down or "weather bound."

The storm appeared to foment in the southwest, sweeping across parts of Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, upper Michigan and Minnesota. A strong and at times almost gale-like wind was accompanied by varying elements, rain, snow, sleet and hail. Power and communication lines sagged or broke under a heavy burden or snow and sleet, severing many cities from light and power as well as communication.

Docks Damaged.

Lake Michigan was whipped into one of its worst storms of a score of years. Veteran coast guardsmen said waves dashed from 25 to 35 feet high along the Illinois-Wisconsin shore line, battering down docks and eating away at the coast line.

The government weather bureau at St. Louis forecast new floods throughout the Mississippi north of St. Louis. This territory for nearly a month has been menaced by high water and weakened levees, and the unusual downpour of Sunday was looked upon as an added peril over the area.

Only a few casualties accompanied the storm, according to the meagre reports received from the hard-stricken sections. A young girl was killed in Arkansas, struck by a falling tree. A policeman in St. Louis suffered brain concussion when struck by an awning. Property damage was heavy, buildings destroyed, plate glass windows crashed and telegraph and telephone poles broken.

The temperature fell from 30 to 50 degrees over most of the section, reaching the freezing point.

THREE LIVES LOST.

Columbus, Ohio, April 1—(AP)—Taking three lives, injuring a half dozen persons seriously and causing thousands of dollars property damage, a high wind swept over Ohio today and wasted its fury tonight as it passed into the east.

L. A. Cornett, Newark radio salesman, was killed when the high wind blew a large tree down on his automobile, enroute from his suburban home to work in Newark. His automobile was demolished.

Loa Bacon, 16, of Belmore, near Lima, was blown into the path of an automobile as she made her way to the country school along Montooth road. She died of a broken neck and fractured skull.

Two Cleveland men, Frank Moore, 70, a hoisting engineer, and Charles Zizka, 74, were injured probably fatally. The wind buried Moore beneath a heap of debris when it ripped the roof from a building on which he was working. Zibka was struck by a sign torn loose from its fastenings by the gale.

Mrs. J. C. Kohler, 77, of Wapakoneta, suffered a fractured hip when the wind blew her off her feet.

Margaret Beal, 10, died from a crushed skull suffered when the wind tore out a window frame in the public school at Newell, W. Va., across the Ohio river from East Liverpool, and hurled it against the girl as she sat at her desk. Marion Brooks, 11, and Vernon Cline, 11, fellow pupils, were cut by broken glass.

The wind roared from one end of the state to the other, tearing down signs, breaking windows, ripping light buildings from their foundations, crippling telephone and telegraph communication and doing heavy damage to orchards.

Alliance, Canton, Massilon, Akron and Youngstown all reported considerable damage.

RESORTS FLOODED

Detroit, Mich., April 1—(AP)—A sixty mile an hour gale, sweeping northeast over Michigan, today backed the water of the Detroit river into Lake St. Clair, from which is flows, flooding summer resorts around the lake and marooning several families in the second floors of their homes.

The river level dropped three feet this afternoon as the flow reversed in front of the wind and poured back into the lake. Fairhaven was under water a half mile from the normal lake shore line and at Algonac several summer mansions, including that of Gar Wood, speed boat king, were damaged seriously.

Several hundred passengers on a Detroit-Windsor ferry were marooned in mid-river for five hours after the boat was blown onto a sandbar.

PENNSYLVANIA STORM.

Stroudsburg, Pa., April 1—(AP)—One man was killed and two persons injured today in a tornado that cut a path four miles wide along the Delaware river between Easton and Portland, Pa. The storm also caused heavy damage on the New Jersey side of the river.

Sweeping in from the southwest, the storm carried houses and barns from their foundations, blew off roofs of scores of other buildings and uprooted hundreds of trees.

Boyd Titman, of Polkville, near Portland, was killed by heavy timbers from the wreckage of his barn. A brother, Charles Titman, and his family saw the approach of the funnel-shaped cloud and hastened to their cellar a moment before their house was carried from its foundations.

At Vale, N. J., Charles Jones, 33, suffered a possible fracture of the skull when struck by a timber as his barn was lifted from its foundation.

A bridge spanning the Delaware river between Portland and Columbia was wrecked and closed to all but foot traffic. Nearly every chimney in Portland, a town of about 4,000, was blown down; scores of houses were unroofed in Portland and in Columbia.

HITS MISSOURI.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., April 1—(AP)—Two score persons were injured and property damage that may reach $1,000,000 was caused by a terrific Easter windstorm in southeastern Missouri. No deaths had been reported late today and it was believed none of the injuries would prove fatal.

Cheered by bright sunshine, people in the storm area began clearing away the debris and removing furniture from damaged buildings in an effort to reduce losses.

The damage in Butler county was confined to the rural sections known as the Roxie community, Green Forest church community and Marble Hill community. Twenty to thirty buildings were either wrecked or damaged by the wind that reached almost tornado proportions.

The storm seemed to originate in northern Kansas. Another storm struck Broseley and Quilin, in Butler county, and still another seemed to originate in Wayne county and sweep northward to Mineral Point where considerable damage resulted.

Michigan City, Ind., April 1—(AP) Scores of cottages and summer homes at Long Beach, resort a few miles from here, were in danger tonight of being washed away by high waves which beat against the shores of Lake Michigan.

The strong north wind has pushed the water into the harbor at a high level and parts of the Long Beach pier have been loosened and carried away.

George Germaine Back From Mexico; Tells of Revolution Happenings

The revolt in Mexico is directed solely against the political regime of Former President Elias Plutarco Calles and is winning the sympathies of the masses who have grown weary of his oppressive dictatorship, according to George Germaine, who returned from the war zone Saturday to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Germaine, 513 South Eleventh street.

Mr. Germaine has been employed for the past year as a mechanical engineer for the Mazapil Copper company, an English concern, having extensive mining operations at Concepcion, Del Oro, in the state of Zacatecas. Concepcion was the scene of several skirmishes between the federal and rebel troops, which the former Escanaba man witnessed. This city of 10,000 is situated 80 miles southwest of Saltillo, Coahuila, 200 miles south of Torreon and 200 miles southeast of Monterey, all places that have figured prominently in the Mexican revolution news.

Sympathy With Rebels

Germaine will be remembered by many as the pitcher who played for several seasons with the Escanaba baseball club about a decade ago. Following his graduation from the Houghton College of Mines, he entered the employ of a Canadian company making surveys of oil and mineral lands in the northwest provinces. He went to Mexico about a year ago.

"Everyone in Mexico, excepting those holding government offices, is in sympathy with the rebels," Mr. Germaine said when interviewed yesterday. "They are not afraid to express their opinions. Even in Saltillo where 27 revolters faced the firing squad, the people continued in their demonstrations against the Calles rule.

"The trouble in Mexico is primarily political, and the religious question does not play a very great part. Of course, rebel army leaders have attempted to get a following among the Catholics by the reopening of churches in towns they captured, and have in some extent gathered recruits as a result. If the religious issue were the main cause of the rebellion, however, victory for the rebels would be easy as 90 per cent of the people are of that faith.

Elections Meaningless

"The trouble with Mexico is that it is a hotbed of political chicanery. Calles is the real power in Mexico, nothwithstanding the fact that he left the office of president.

"Under Calles' rule, an election does not mean anything. Governors and other public officers elected by the people have been removed from office shortly after election, and his friends appointed in their places. Even residents of one state have been appointed to public offices in another. When Portes Gil was elected provisional president the Mexican senate had only one choice."

The general opinion in Mexico is that Calles had something to do with the killing of Obregon to further his own interests, according to Germaine.

"Very few believe that Toral was ever executed," Germaine said. "How an unknown artist as Toral was represented to be could have gotten so close to the heavily-guarded Obregon is considered ridiculous. It is understood that Calles and Obregon had become estranged politically after the latter's election, and his subsequent assassination caused much rumor. Calles is said to have been the first to visit Toral in his cell after he had been arrested."

The Escanaba man started to leave for this country on March 4 but did not arrive at Laredo on the border until March 24 owing to the crippled condition of the Mexican National railway. Temporary bridges and tracks had to be placed as the train on which he rode advanced northward.

He smuggled across the border a copy of a newspaper published by the rebels after they took Saltillo and took possession also of the town's newspaper plant. The publication outlines the principles for which the revolters are fighting and strongly denounces Calles. Mr. Germaine also succeeded in taking across some camera snapshots of war scenes taken shortly before he left Concepcion.

Radios Good Night to "Dad"

When Eddie Jaye, playing the part of the baron in a pantomime in Leeds, England, recently said "Good night" to Cinderella, he added "and good night to my old dad, who I know is listening to me. Good night, dad." The pantomime was being broadcast, and Jaye sent the message to his seventy-year-old father, S. Jacobs, who was listening in at his home in Blackpoint. Jaye had not been able to get home for a long time, and his father had asked him to send some message. It was heard by thousands of radio fans.

WOMAN'S CLUB HAS MEETING

Organization Plans Card Party; Members Give Talks

The members of the Business & Professional Women's club held their regular dinner meeting at the Ludington hotel last night at 6:15. Despite the traffic conditions in the wake of the blizzard which swept the city Sunday and Monday the attendance was fairly good, thirty-four members answering the roll call.

Plans were formulated for a card party to be given Monday evening, April 15, at the Ludington hotel immediately after the dinner meeting. The committee in charge are to purchase suitable awards for the holders of high scores in bridge and five hundred and other amusement will be furnished for those who do not play cards.

Miss Clara Bouchard gave an interesting talk on the manner in which she secured a commercial education, stressing the fact that when one wants to accomplish anything the word "can't" must be stricken from one's vocabulary.

After the meeting members of the club congratulated Miss Bouchard on her determination to gain an education and her undaunted spirit is sticking to the work until completion when she was better equipped to earn her living as a business woman.

At every meeting each member who has had a birthday anniversary during the preceding two weeks, gives a short talk on the ambitions which she entertained in childhood and why and how she engaged in the work which she is now following.

Miss Isabelle Cass entertained the members with two humorous readings in Irish and Italian dialect. These were very favorably received.

Every member is urged to attend the next meeting and enjoy the card program which will be the social feature of that evening.

The entire membership has now reached 86 and it is expected that many more will join at the next meeting.

THIS MOTHER OF ELEVEN CHILDREN IS FEELING FINE

Says the New Medicine Dreco Has Made Her Feel Better Than in Seven Years. Advises All to Try It.

"Many days of suffering could be avoided if people only realized how important it is to keep the stomach regular and the bowels active," The Fair Store. "When the stomach is deranged and the bowels are constipated a long train of suffering is sure to appear. That Dreco is an excellent remedy for such conditions is proven by the following experience related by Mrs. T. Sabourin of 113 North 8th St., who's husband is employed by the Escanaba Traction Co. and is quite popular with his fellow employees, and says:

"For seven years I've suffered from stomach disorders and the many troubles that follow when that important organ is weak. I had acid risings in my throat, my food soured in my stomach and often my heart would rush over me and spots dance before my eyes. My head would ache at times and every day I was constipated.

"Reading in the papers about Dreco I just felt that here was a medicine that would help me so I got some and I'm glad I did for now I'm feeling fine. I am the mother of eleven children, which is something to be proud of, but it takes a lot of strength for a woman to care for a family like that but Dreco has renewed my energy very much.

"My stomach troubles are about ended, the constipation relieved, and last Sunday I picked blueberries and even the stooping over did not make me dizzy. I surely recommend Dreco to the people of our city."

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

Fame is the flame that draws the unsuspecting moths to this bright aura. At the Delft today, Tin-Pan-Alley is the flame to which comes floating on humming wings, Russ Glover, the moth, attracted by the ambitious glow of knocking the world dead as a successful song writer. One hot piece of sodder is this lad Russ, and though like the fabled moth he is not actually destroyed, nevertheless gets his wings badly singed before Old Man Good-Luck comes to his aid with the help of a dazzling, sweet blonde and the inspired memory of his forefathers.

It's all a bright scintillating story of Tin-Pan-Alley, that romantic stretch of cow-path along Broadway, where music in the making rends the welkin like nobody's business. Arthur Lubin and Alice Day are the two principals, who face a peck of trouble until rescued by Arthur's giving birth to a classical masterpiece while pounding the ivories in a Ghetto Cafe.

"Times Square" is strong in human interest, love motif and fidelity to detail in capturing the atmosphere of the song world. An entertaining comedy drama you will be sorry to miss.

In the past five years the Imperial Airways of England covered 4,000,000 miles of flying.

The corn exchange at Stafford, England, is to be closed after an existence of more than 100 years.
